Do you store hazardous substances other than petroleum? Are you aware that you must comply with revised NJDEP regulations? Did you know that you are playing Russian Roulette if you do not comply with regulations that were revised many years ago? Non-compliance with these revised regulations could cost you a $20,000 civil administrative penalty. Moreover, there are substantial additional fines for non-compliance - up to $50,000.

August 1, 1992 was the final compliance deadline for facilities storing over 20,000 gallons of hazardous materials. The regulations involve preparation of Discharge Prevention, Containment, and Countermeasure (DPCC) and Discharge Cleanup and Removal (DCR) plans. If yours are not ready, you could be facing a monumental task.

Are You Ready?

You're ready only if you have:

- Set goals and schedules for your plan
- Collected and organized the general information needed
- Evaluated mapping options
- Obtained the proper certifications
- Can demonstrate compliance with the revised regulations
